

2/9/01 Delmar, NY For immediate release

KnowledgeXtensions, Inc. moves to larger office in Delmar, NY.

KnowledgeXtensions, a pioneer in personalized e-learning, announced today that it will be moving its offices to 500 Kenwood Ave. in Delmar NY. The move will be effective as of February 1st, 2001.

The company, which has been growing rapidly since its start four years ago, will occupy nearly 4,000 square feet. The contemporary building offers a T1 internet connection and the two-floor office configuration will easily house the company's management, sales, marketing, R&D and tech support divisions.

The company recently received an award from the Capital Region Software Alliance as Best New Enterprise. Currently KnowledgeXtensions employs around twenty, with expectations to double in the next 18 months.

States KnowledgeXtensions President & CEO David Geoghegan, "We expect productivity to skyrocket with the new space. As an e-business, with clients across the US and abroad, we could locate anywhere. We're proud to be in the Capital Region, with its great quality of life, and look forward to operating from the centralized location of Delmar."

"This is just the type of high-tech company we want to foster in Albany County," said Albany County Executive Michael Breslin, "KnowledgeXtensions has already shown solid growth and plans to double employment. We are pleased to help this exciting venture create new jobs with promising futures for our residents."

The Albany County Partnership assisted KnowledgeXtensions in finding a larger facility for their expanding business. The company has applied for a $5,000 Business Incentive Fund award from the County to help fund moving expenses.

"On behalf of the Bethlehem community I want to welcome KnowledgeXtensions into our growing family of successful businesses," added Shelia Fuller, Bethlehem Town Supervisor. "We wish them continued growth and prosperity and look forward to a beneficial relationship for many years to come."

KnowledgeXtensions, Inc., which was previously located in a studio at David Geoghegan's Capital Region farm, is a leader in the development of personalized instruction, and has created a strong track record in satisfying the needs of corporations across the enterprise. Experienced in serving Fortune 500 companies, (including GE, IBM, PWC, PR NEWswire, DIEBOLD, NCR, AT&T, DELOITTE & TOUCHE, ANDERSEN CONSULTING, PRENTICE HALL, AMERICAN EXPRESS, and COMPAQ), KnowledgeXtensions is dedicated to applying the latest software advances to help realize the promise of on-line learning, and they offer a full-range of products and services dedicated to insuring the success of a client's e-learning effort.
